STUDENT STORY

Lexi Labossiere

Proud Endicott Graduate Nursing, Class of 2020

Endicott is a super special place, and it didn't take long for it to feel like my second home. The small classes, one-on-one attention and support I received, and access to the Tutoring Center were so valuable to my success from my freshman year, all the way through to my Senior Thesis. I always felt safe; I always felt welcomed; and I always comfortable at Endicott. The small campus and community were perfect for me and helped me form lasting relationships with my professors and my peers.

I had unmatched support and unbelievable access to incredible internships in the Boston area. There is no better preparation out there for the real world.

- I'm an Endicott College Graduate, School of Nursing, 2020 (Spanish minor!)
- My clinical at Massachusetts General Hospital during school led to my full time job today.
- My favorite Endicott tradition is the yearly walk for Relay For Life! Nothing beats our campus community and the power of charitable giving.
- I love the Endicott campus. It's small, beautiful and on private beaches
- I met my BFF in my dorm (Brindle Hall) freshman year.
- I don't play sports, but I love to go to Endicott team games and events.

I wouldn't be where I am today without Endicott.

PARENT STORY

Michelle Labossiere

Proud Parent of an Endicott Graduate

I've lived in Massachusetts all my life. I grew up in Waltham, and attended Babson College for my undergraduate degree, and Bentley for my master's. And while I've been quite content staying local to my home state, I fully expected my only daughter would want to spread her wings and fly outside of the Massachusetts state lines. We're so glad she didn't!

My daughter applied to 13 schools during her senior year of high school, and I'm positive Endicott did not start as her first choice. After deciding to attend a mid-size college in New Hampshire she got the acceptance letter from Endicott, but already had her mind made up. As her mother, it was important to me that she truly look at every option, and I admit, I had to nudge her to attend Accepted Students Day at Endicott. To my pleasant surprise, after having spent only a few hours on campus, meeting existing and incoming students, touring the grounds, talking to professors, she walked right up to me and said, "Forget New Hampshire. We need to leave a deposit here today."

Shortly after my daughter arrived on campus I was asked to join the Parent's Advisory Council. I was impressed with Endicott's desire to have parents share their thoughts about so many things that impact the students and the campus. The council, with over 40 parent members, discusses academic programs, internships, housing issues, and things that effect the social environment on campus.

Shortly thereafter, I was invited to be a Trustee of the college. Being a Trustee is a big responsibility, and one I welcomed gladly. Through both of these advisory groups, I was able to get to know our current President Steven DiSalvo. I enjoy working with him, and the trustees, who bring so many different perspectives to the work we do. It's our pleasure to come together to make Endicott what it is for our children and those who will come after them.

One of my favorite traditions at Endicott College is Homecoming Weekend. The campus feels warm and welcoming—from the student cooked breakfast, to the football games, Homecoming is the perfect opportunity for our entire family to show their pride for our children and support their college experience.

Parent to parent, why Endicott?

The required internship program is one of the strongest we've seen.

Study abroad programs gives my student opportunities to travel.

Small, manageable classes and student to teacher ratios.

Strong, supportive community of professors, advisors, and mentors.

Beautiful, walkable, and safe campus.

Incredible, welcoming, and responsive professors and student advisors.

And last, but certainly not least, from the moment my child stepped on campus she said it "felt like home." As a parent, that's all I needed to hear .

We don't just want you to come to Endicott, we want you to

JOIN OUR COMMUNITY

At Endicott, it's the students who really make our campus come to life. Whether you're a participant or spectator, want to join a club or become involved with community service, hang out on campus or explore our three miles of hiking trails, there's no shortage of ways to stay active and involved.

Did you know that more than 90% of Endicott students choose to stay on campus on the weekends, and 84% participate in campus wellness and recreation activities, including intramural sports? We also have 36 unique, accessible; all-gender housing options available on campus, and support charitable, eco-friendly, and green programs that allow us to donate 350 pounds of food weekly to local homeless shelters, and compost all dining hall waste materials.

MEET YOUR PROFESSOR

I find that the students who choose Endicott, enter their freshman year ambitious and hardworking, and exit their senior year with a unique sense of confidence that only comes from all of the opportunities afforded to them during their time with us.

Dr. Anna McAlister, Associate Professor, Marketing at Endicott College is the 2020 recipient of the Academic Excellence Award, which recognizes an exemplary member of the faculty for outstanding teaching, scholarship, and service to the college over the past year.

I joined the School of Business in 2015 to teach courses in marketing, consumer behavior, research methods, and data analysis, but over the years my experience at Endicott has grown to encompass so much more.

While Endicott has a very desirable campus location, on the water and in close proximity to both Boston and beauty of New England, we find that students ultimately decide to join us for so many important reasons. At Endicott we offer a manageable campus, small classes, and intimate setting where they can not only get to know their peers, but also their professors. And more importantly, we have the privilege of getting to know them, giving us the ability to help them embrace their own dedication and focus, or help them pivot when necessary to achieve the success we know they are capable of. In addition to a bright, devoted student body, one thing I enjoy greatly about Endicott is the administration's willingness to empower their professors to be creative and nurture the interests of our students. By eliminating typical or potential roadblocks, we're able to introduce students to new course options, hobbies or community service programs that ultimately serve all participants in a positive way.

One thing that makes Endicott so special is our traditions. Because our campus and student body are small, word travels fast, and accordingly there seems to be a heightened sense of school spirit and level of participation across the board. One of my favorite events is what we call "Finals Feed." Every semester, during finals, we open the Callahan dining hall to students from 9-11 p.m. The faculty and staff volunteer to cook them a late night breakfast to help them get through what is typically a long night of studying. It's a wonderful opportunity for the faculty to show the students how much we recognize their hard work, and it's so fun to see their smiling faces when they realize who's serving them french toast and omelets.
